Sustainable Finance Products and Markets

A workshop that responds to the growing interest in green, social and sustainable investments, as well as the numerous industry sectors and projects that can be tapped for potential investment opportunities.

TARGET AUDIENCE

The workshop is aimed at early to midcareer professionals in the banking and finance sector, with a focus on ESG, policy and sustainability.

MEET THE TRAINER

TAMAR JOULIA-PARIS

Senior Risk Advisor and Non-Executive
Independent Director

Tamar first worked as project manager for infrastructure construction in the Middle East, and then in Europe for cable manufacturing. She then joined banking to set-up a modern risk management framework for lending, investment and trading books. She became head of Credit Portfolio Management at ING Group in Amsterdam, developing risk appetite, research, stress testing and market-based solutions for risk, capital and liquidity optimisation. She was also leading the Credit Capital Markets business during the Global Financial Crisis.

Tamar is now focusing on her academic pursuits and advisory work in enterprise, credit and sustainability risk management. She is also advising policy makers on matters relating to Sustainable Finance, ESG Risk Management and Capital Markets Union.

ABOUT THE PROGRAMME

The Sustainable Development – ESG Markets Workshop takes a deep dive examining:

- ESG megatrends
- The size and scope of sustainability markets
- Key market drivers and challenges
- ESG-related investment products
- Global investment opportunities

The workshop is developed by The London Institute of Banking & Finance and is delivered in partnership with ADGM Academy.

Participants will gain the below learning outcomes:

-  Explain the range of financial products that exist in support of sustainable development.
-  Describe the prospects for future market growth (e.g. Carbon markets, sustainability-linked lending.)
